This is a poster designed for the magazine "Pure Awesomness". If you want to use any content inside the magazine including this poster do not contact the designers, developers and publishers of this game. Usage without the permission of the authors is legal and will not be prosecuted. Similarities with existing people are coincidences and were unintentional, maybe. Some hope that staff members or students were unharmed. The story of the game "Escape the University" relies on true events in the mind of the developers. Sharing, torrenting, seeding and changing content of this game is allowed but please if you create something where you really think it is of some sort of value do not hesitate and contact the developers. It is always nice to see where evolution can go. If you gain some money out of it share it with developers, where would you be without them?
